SCIENCE FEATURE:

The Impact of Fetal Anomalies on Contemporary Labor Patterns— published in the American Journal of Perinatology

Drs. McCormick, McIntosh, and Cruz evaluated how labor progresses in women with fetal anomalies. Using a large database (the Consortium of Safe Labor) of over 100,000 patients' labor courses, they were able to demonstrate that women with fetal anomalies experience longer, slower labor than women with normal pregnancies. This information will be helpful for physicians managing patients with anomalies such that they know that it is reasonable to be more patient with how labor progresses in patients whose fetus has an anomaly.

NEW GRANT:

 Pradeep Chaluvally – Raghavan, PhD: Division of Research and Advanced Education—R01 CA229907
 Role of RNA activation in Tumor Progression and Metastasis

FEATURED CLINCAL TRIALS:

- EndoBARR—NCT03694262 An Open Label, Non-Randomized Multisite Phase II Trial Combining Bevacizumab, Atezolizumab and Rucaparib for the Treatment of Previously Treated Recurrent and Progressive Endometrial Carcinoma. Pl: William Bradley, MD
- The OVAL Study—NCT03398655 A Randomized, Controlled, Double-Arm, Double Blind, Multi-Center Study of Ofranergene Obadenovec (VB-111) Combined with Paclitaxel vs. Paclitaxel Combined with Placebo for the Treatment of Recurrent Platinum-Resistant Ovarian Cancer

CANCER CRUSH

Join us: September 28th

TO HELP SCIENCE CRUSH CANCER!! With your help, last year we raised over $10,000!!

Please support us again this year in CRUSHING CANCER by donating and/or joining us in the walk/run on September 28th!

Whether big or small, any amount will HELP! Go to https://fundraise.mcw.edu/obgyn

HONOR:

The Medical College of Wisconsin Cancer Center Awarded Top Honor

The National Cancer Institute's (NCI) National Clinical Trials Network (NCTN) designated the MCW Cancer Center as a Lead Academic Participating Site (LAPS) for the strength and innovation of its ongoing research and science and robust participation in its clinical trials. The MCW Cancer Center is one of only 30 institutions in the U.S. to achieve this designation, and the only institution in Milwaukee and the eastern Wisconsin region.

NEWSLETTER: FALL 2019

WELCOME:

Emily RW Davidson, MD—Assistant Professor in Urogynecology, Cleveland Clinic

Elizabeth Hopp, MD—Assistant Professor in Gynecologic Oncology, University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center (OBGYN Alumni 2016)

Bo Rydze, MD—Assistant Professor in Reproductive Endocrinology, Baylor College of Medicine

Ashley Boehrig, APNP—Advanced Practice Nurse Practitioner in Gynecologic Oncology

CLINICAL UPDATES:

Wellness Within Motherhood: Support for the Fourth Trimester —a new perinatal session. This group is designed to support women with their wellbeing and developing healthy thoughts and emotions as they transition into the role of mother. It is a 4-week group that is offered monthly on Mondays from 12-1:15pm. It is appropriate for any woman looking to gain education and coping skills related to postpartum adjustment and can be viewed similarly to other prenatal education classes.

The Fibroid Clinic at Froedtert & The Medical College of Wisconsin—offers all patients enrollments in an IRB-approved prospective database to monitor treatment outcomes after chosen therapies. Baseline symptoms and post-treatment symptoms are collected with validated questionnaires to evaluate quality of life effects from uterine fibroids. This database will lead to future studies to help guide treatment decisions for patients affected by uterine fibroids.

QUALITY:

In the last 6 months we have expanded our patient safety bundles to include obstetric hemorrhage. This effort included didactic teaching on the bundle as well as an interdisciplinary simulation on obstetric hemorrhage for all team members on labor and delivery led by Dr. Kourtney Dropps. We are actively working on our next obstetric patient safety bundle on severe hypertension.
